

Adding Funds

BRIEFING

Now we're cooking. You have signed-up with Avaya CPaaS, and updated your account with Production Access. You have done a little design work, enough to whet your appetite for more, but you have spent the $3 we gave you. No problem, we can fix that.

Naturally, this bit is not free. All this awesomeness doesn't grow on trees, you know. Now you need your credit card. Sorry about that.

LAUNCH

- From the dashboard of your CPaaS account, click Add Funds beside your account balance display.
- From the drop-down menu, select an amount of credits to charge your account with.
- Enter your credit card information into the spaces provided.
- Provide the billing address associated with the credit card.
- Optional: If you never want to miss out in the future, you can set things up to automatically recharge your account with a specified amount whenever you start to run low. You need never be caught short on credits again!
- Once all of your details are ready, click Make Payment and we will process your request. Done!

After your credit card details have been verified, your account balance will be updated with the amount of credits you purchased. Sweet!

If you chose to set it up that way, your account will be automatically topped up whenever your balance falls below the set threshold. The listed credit card will be charged. If you are doing things old school, you will have to add funds yourself whenever you need them.

The added funds allow you to buy more telephone lines, to continue to support existing lines, and can provide access to any other content that is not freely available.

NEXT MISSION

- Now that you are well on your way, buy a telephone number (or several) to use with your apps.
